GOATY HILL RIESLING 2008

Tasmania may not have a long track record with riesling but it's apparent that the state produces wines of the same quality as the Clare and Eden valleys, albeit of an entirely different style. This is a perfect example: stunningly pristine and seriously zesty, with plenty of lemon-lime fruit but – at a mere 11 per cent alcohol – quite racy and fine. $22 at Cru Cellars, Fortitude Valley, or www.goatyhill.com
